THE HORNBLLOWERS CAPTURE AN AUDIENCE
"The Curious Savage" by John Patrick was performed Friday and Saturday nights by the Hornblowers of St. Gabriels Church of Marion. Ted Babbitt, Jr., who has appeared in many previous plays, directed a fine group in this greedy to possess the fortune left by their father to Mrs. Savage. She has been spending it to make up for the years of submerging her own personality to her husbands. She had written and produced bad plays and become an actress in them, and planned to set up the Savage Foundation for the financing of other people with similar suppressed dreams, however wild and impractical.

In the institution she finds a group of gentle people living in a state of retreat from reality. Pat McDonald as Florence is a mother bringing up a doll in place of her lost child. Hannibal, played by Rev. Donald Gardner, is a "short circuited" statistician who plays a violin with horrible effect which he hears as great music. David Palamountain as Jeff is a pilot whose crash has killed his crew and scarred his mind. Fairy May, a delightful, homely girl who, in her own mind, is beautiful, and who seeks only words of love from her companions, is the creation of Jackie Lenz. Mrs. Paddy by Elizabeth Bendall is a woman who hates pins, pans, frogs, dogs, etc., etc., etc., and who paints the ocean she has never seen and who has given up electricity for Lent.

The nurse, Miss Wilhelmina, played by Beverly Knapp, is the wife of Jeff, the pilot, unrecognized by him in his unbalance. The Savages who commit their foster mother are Titus played by Dick Peters, bombastic Senator from Massachusetts; Samuel played by Bill Beardsley and Lily Belle played by Jan Mendes, a much divorced, money motivated, spoiled, self-pampered Savage daughter. Dr. Emmett is Dave Johns.

This play has to be cleverly done. On the surface it is a light story with amusing antics antics and clever lines in a world of delightfully pixillated people. The cast has the task of drawing the audience into this world of fantasy and within its narrow limits be a participant in the action and a willing one among wonderful friends. Only in the end is the audience shut out as is Mrs. Savage and such is the identification that the return to the sane world is a sad one. Parting from the world of The Cloisters is a sweet sorrow. The fun is gone when you can no longer be one of these friends. You can laugh with them but not at them when they retreat to their strange plane. This transportation was done so well that it was an entertaining evening filled with good laughs and the brief moment of sad parting, a tribute to the skill of these Hornblower players.

The entire cast was excellent. In the lead, Hannah Ten Brook carried her character through the center of the action in a beautifully finished portrayal. Jackie Lenz was delightful as Fairy May and was the catalyst used to invite the audience into the unreal world and make it reluctant to leave. Good comedy touches were provided by Rev. Donald Gardner and Elizabeth Bendall. To all the cast: it was well done and lots of fun.

ARBOR DAY EXERCISES

Ideal weather presented an appropriate setting for Arbor Day exercises held recently in front of the green at Rochester Memorial School. Two pin oak trees, a gift from the Parent-Teachers Association, were planted equidistance from the flag pole on the green in front of the school. A donation from the Rochester Improvement Association enabled the P-TA to purchase mature trees. Sharing the honors in planting of the trees were the winners of the best compositions, "Why We Should Save Our Forests", Elizabeth Collins and Deborah Hartley, Grade 6 pupils.

Class president Peter Balzarini of Grade 6 presented the welcome to parents and guests present at the Arbor Day exercises. Peter,
